

The Legend of Fairy Stone
Many hundreds of years before Chief Powhatan’s reign, fairies, naiads and wood nymphs lived in the region’s forests. One bright sunny day, as enchanted creatures danced around a spring, an elfin messenger arrived from a city far away.

He brought news of the death of Jesus Christ, and these forest creatures wept when they heard the story of the crucifixion. As their tears of sadness fell upon the earth, they crystallized to form beautiful crosses. When the fairies disappeared forever, this enchanted ground was strewn with these mementos.

For many years, people held these little crosses in superstitious awe, firm in the belief that they protected the wearer against witchcraft, sickness, accidents and disasters.

While at Fairy Stone
We hope you will have an opportunity to explore the many scenic, recreational and historical area attractions. Fairy Stone is just minutes from the scenic Blue Ridge Parkway and popular destinations like Mabry Mill in Meadows of Dan and Philpott Lake.

Other attractions include the Chateau Morrisette Winery in Meadows of Dan, the Reynolds Homestead in Critz, the Blue Ridge Farm Museum in Ferrum, and the Martinsville Speedway and Virginia Museum of Natural History in Martinsville.

Should you need it, Martinsville and Stuart have hospital service. Martinsville also provides a wide variety of shopping, movie theaters and other activities. Stuart has grocery shopping and a post office. Fishing licenses and sporting equipment can be purchased in Bassett. Don’t forget to stop by the park office to purchase fairy stones and other souvenirs of your trip.
